DETERMINED WAR WAGED ON SOCIAL-ISTS IN WURTEMBURG.

Healy's Injuries Very Serious-Imperia Federation-Mai, Kunz' Work on Ger man Victories-A Rajah's Estate in India-The Bombardment of a Chilian City -General Foreign News.

London, March 25.—The question asked in Parliament by Mr. Labouchere relative to the new steamers between Great Britain and the Continent for the conveyance of distin-guished persons has brought out the interguissed persons has brought out the made esting fact that no charge whatever is made for such conveyance, but that, on the contrary, the various steamship lines are eager rivals for the honor of conveying royal and princely personages without any charge whatever. It is said that at least one of Queen Victoria's impecunious, German sons-in-law has turned a quiet penny by favoring a certain line of boats in his journeys between England and the Continent, his arrangement or understandingwith the company being that he shall make himself and the Princess as conspicumake himself and the Princess as conspicu-ous as possible during the voyage, thus ad-vertising the steamship lines and attracting passengers, and that a special doucer was exacted for the presence of passengers in the saloon while the Prince and suite were at meals. At any rate, whatever the truth in these reports, certain it is the charges for conveying royal and princely personages no longer appear in the estimates, and it is equally certain that they do not pay their way themselves.

GERMAN VICTORIES.

A CRITICISM PROVOKING MUCH COMMENT-BER

LIN NOTES. BERLIN, March 25 .- A work written by German official, Maj. Kunz, on the campaign of the Austrian Marshal Radetzsky in Italy, has evoked considerable comment in Berlin and Paris. In his introduction Maj. Kuni and Paris. In his introduction Maj. Kuns says the victories achieved by the German armies in the campaigns of 1865 and 1870 were mainly due to superior numbers, and he compares this fact with victories won with greatly inferior numbers. The statement was that German victories had been received with favorable criticism in Berlin military circles, where it is claimed that the Germans owed their success to other causes than superiority in the number of troops.

THE CHILIAN REVOLUTION.

PURTHER DETAILS OF THE BOMBARDMENT—AMERICAN CRUISERS SAIL.

PANAMA, March 25.—The British fronclad Warspite which was at Iquique, Chili, at the time of the bombardment has touched here. The officers give some very interesting information concerning occurrences there.

The Warspite left there on Feb. 26; before the ship left the town was set on fire, and $2,000,000 worth of property destroyed. The 000,000 worth of property destroyed. The story as told by those on the ship is as follows:

When the rebels captured the fort the Government troops took up their position some distance away with the intention of attacking the city. Hearing that the rebels had gone distance away with the intention of attacking the city. Hearing that the rebels had gone into the town leaving the shipping in the harbor but slightly protected, they marched in with about two hundred men, and started the fight. The Government had only two ships, and the rebels all the rest, numbering gix or eight. The firing began and the town caught fire. For a while during the fire the fighting was rather lively but the leaders got together and compromised matters. Col. Soto was to turn his troops over to the insurgents and distribute among them $10,000. All those in authority agreed to this and the government troops dispersed. Then Soto was arrested, the charge being made that he had distributed $1,000 of the money and kept the other $9,000 for himself.

CAUSE OF REVOLT.

A FORMER RESIDENT OF VALPARAISO GIVES

Yesterday Dr. W. A. Edwards of Denver, Colo., arrived in the city, and is at the Southern. Dr. Edwards was for more than ten years a resident of Valparaiso, Chiff, and has studied closely the course of events in Chili. SOME INTERESTING FACTS.

The present revolt, and the manner which the warfare is carried, said Dr. Edwards, "cannot surprise any one who is at all familiar with the character of the Chilians, Chilenos, as they call themselves, or the system of government. Chill is nominally a republic, but practically it has long been an oligarchy, governed by thirty or forty rich and influential families. While the rising is nominally one against the President it is in reality directed against the system of which he ty-directed against the system, of which he is the representative, and while the personal causes of complaint brought matters to a focus they had little to do with the origin

DATING BACK TO 1875. "Even when I first went to Chili, in 1876, the hostility between the inhabitants of the seacoast cities and the men who lived in the sountry was bitter. The landholders, for the most part men who had inherited their formost part men who had inherited their fortunes, lived in Valparaiso, and the feeling was very much what it is in Ireland against absentee landlords. This landholding class has practically controlled the Government for thirty years, and have nearly invariably chosen the President, whose powers are far greater than those of the President of the Tinited States. All legislation has been in the hands of a few people, and until recently all commissions in the army and navy were given to those in sympathy with the ruling caste, which really constituted an aristocracy as strong as any in Europe. Holding confrol of the army and navy, however, which were by far the best equipped and organized in South America, the ruling classes were able to prevent any rebellion from breaking out, and by declaring war against Peru and Bolivia the Government did much to make itself popular. nent did much to make itself popular.

A FIRATICAL EXPEDITION.

"The true history of that war has never been written. Such a piratical expedition is unknown in modern times, and it was carried on with a barbarity worthy of our In dians. When the war broke out the army was largely increased, and its organize much extended, which accounts for the showing made by those in rebellion age the Government at the present tim the Government at the present time, as nearly all the leaders are men who gained reputation in leading volunteer forces in that contest. Chili carried on the war in a man-ner unknown in modern times. The army did not try to conquer Peru, but to destroy it in order that the Peruvians, who hate the Chilenos, might be compelled to ask for annexation. I went over the whole route of the army, and saw that what had once been a rich, fertile country had been transformed into a desert. Plantetions were distroyed houses burnt. Plantations were distroyed, houses burnt rinflations were distroyed, houses burnt, irrigating canals blown up long after peace had been declared. But the object was accomplished and while Peru was not annexed, it is no longer a rival of Chili. No one can estimate the amount of plunder that was taken out of the country. Not only was everything movable carried of, but nearly all the weap of property who fell into the men of property who fell into hands of the soldiers were put to ransom. This gave inhabitants of the in-land towns a start such as they had never had hefore had before, and the annexation of the rich guano and nitrite deposits quadru pled the available wealth of Chili.

A DANGEBOUS RIVAL.

'Now the results of the war are rebiling on the heads of its instigators. With coiling on the heads of its instigators. With the removal of Peru as a dangerous rival, and the annexation of the guano fields, the young men of the ruling families abandoned the army and navy, and obtained employment as Government agents in managing the newly acquired property, which they did party much as they pleased. This opened promotion to men who never before had been able to obtain commissions in the military or naval service, and changed its whole complexion. This change did not take pince at once, but has been gradual, and with its growth the dissatisfaction of the army and growth the dissatisfaction of the army and navy has increased. The great weapon of the government was thus frought to a condition in which it could be turned against it, and this has occurred. The army and navy are now closely in asymptoty with the preare now closely in sympathy with the pe ple, and together they seem to control the situation. The condition of Chili since the situation. The condition of Chill since the Peruvian war has been greatly altered by the introduction of foreigners and foreign capital, and with them fair business methods have become more common, greatly to the disgust of the government, as monopolies and bribery were the means of enriching its members. This fact explains the hostility shown by the President to foreigners. As to the ruthless slaughter of prisoners and non-combatants it is only carrying out the rules of the Peruvian war. NOT LEARNED HUMANITY.

'The Chilians have not learned humanity and chivalry from the example of the Peru-vian Admiral, Grau, who once had their army in a position where he could have an-nihilated it at a blow. The invading army had been landed by transports at a town on the Northern Chilian coast, and the trans-ports and escorting warships had been sent back for the artillery and supplies. Grau, with his ironclad, gave him the slip, and steamed to the town where the army was encamped. It had not rained there in the memory of man, and all the water was obtained from condensing works. A few shots would have destroyed these, and A rew shots would have destroyed these, and every human being would have died of thirst. But, speaking behind a rampart of women and children, the Chilian commander defied the Feruvian admiral to fire on the condensing works, and Grau did not do so.

"When the Chilian fleet returned his vessel was captured and he was killed. Such generatives he exhibited the Chilians never erosity as he exhibited the Chilians never copied, and in the civil war now in progres the weaker party need expect no mercy."

On the silver question Mr. Dana said: "We have almost reached free coinage already. The coinage of 4,500,000 ounces of silver a month amounts to that. The effect of free coinage will be to give us a silver currency. We are now on a gold basis, and gold is the standard. The substitution of silver for gold, making silver the currency, will raise the value of gold to a small premium. It was so in France a few years ago. It was a mere trifle, only one-fifth of one per cent, I believe, but it was there. We are now in that road, and we have got to travei it. in that road, and we have got to travel it.

That is, they will pay a premium, which will be that much added to the import duties. Free coinage, with our mints open to the world, would increase this premium. A better way would be chave free coinage of American silver only. therwise, all the old teapots of the world ould be brought here to be turned into dol-

It is given some predence owing to the fact that Edmunds has ong been known as a man disappointed in his public career. After that came the failure of his fight on the Cleveland administration regarding the removal of internal revenue collectors and other officials who had no fixed term of and other officials who had no fixed term of office. PALMER'S DAY. ILLINOIS DEMOCRATS PAY THEIR RESPECTS TO THE SENATOR BLECT.

THE SENATOR-ELECT.

SPRINGPIELD, III., March 25.—At 6 o'clock this morning the people of the Capital were aroused by the strains of the Pullman band of fifty pleces which headed the Chicago Democratic marching club, in charge of Capt. J. H. Farrell, 400 strong, on their march from the station, where they had just arrived from Chicago. This club, with their silk hats, umbrellas and tan-colored gloves, was the feature of the day.

At II o'clock they marched to the State House and were massed in the corridor in front of the executive office and serenaded the Governor. Gov. Fifer appeared and in a happy, but brief speech congratulated the Democracy on their senatorial victory in the election of Gen. THE EXPRESS BILL. Senator Cochran was displeased the treatment given the bill to regulate express companies and place them under the same restrictions and condi-tions as ratiroad corporations. If there was any class of corporations that needed legislation more than express companies, he would like to know what they were. bill, Senator Cochran said he had some cause for grievance. He had introduced the bill at for grievance. He had introduced the bill at the request of St. Louisans and expected the St. Louis Senators to give it every help in its legislative career. By dint of work enough votes had been obtained to carry it with the support, of course, of the St. Louis delegation. Two of the local Senators were absent, however, when it came up for passage, and the measure was defeated. He did not know where they were or why they saw fit to be absent at that time.

The Foole BILL KILLED.

The Fogle bill, imposing a tax on merchants, which was passed by both Houses, was killed before it was sent to the Governor, and will not become a law. This result is due principally to the efforts of the St. Louis delegation that arrived in Jefferson City on Monday to request the Governor to veto the bill. This delegation was re-enforced by letters and telegrams from the Kansas City. St. Joseph delegation was re-enforced by letters and telegrams from the Kansas City, St. Joseph and Springfield Boards of Trade and by hundreds of telegrams from well-known merchants in ail parts of the State protesting against the bill, and asking the Governor to withhold his signature. When the deputation arrived in Jefferson City it was found that many Legislators had undergone a change of heart since they cast their votes in favor of the bill, and were ready to aid in preventing it becoming a law. As the shortest and most direct method of disposing of it, a resolution was passed requesting shortest and most direct method of disposing of it, a resolution was passed requesting the President of the Senate to withdraw his signature, thus preventing the bill from being sent to the Governor and effectually killing it. The friends of the measure made no serious opposition to this, as assurances had been received that it would assuredly be writed it sent to the Governor. vetoed if sent to the Governor.

broken bunches, and when they arrived in San Francisco were in excellent condition for shipment East. With white laborers all was different. I had only to look at the grapes scattered on the ground under my vines to know that the picking had been poorly done, and when the first shipments arrived in San Francisco I got a letter from my agents that called me to that city at once. The bunches were not only broken but many were bruised, this injured the rest and I lost nearly half my grapes. I went back at once, withdrew from the legislative race, discharged my white pickers and replaced them with Chinamen. Nothing short of absolute necessity could induce me to left white men again handle my fruit. It seems impossible to teach the ordinary laborer the care and delicacy of touch necessary in handling fruit like ours, that must be shipped thousands of miles, but these qualities seem to come natural to a Chinaman. Many of the largest purchasing houses refuse to buy either grapes, peaches or pears when assurances are not forthcoming that they were picked by Chinamen. With oranges, a less delicate fruit, such care is not requisite. If the Chinese are scared away from the fruit-growers will be nearly ruined, for white laborers cannot take their place. It is not a question of cheapness, but of efficiency, as any grape or pear grower would sconer pay double wages to Chinamen than allow white men to handle his fruit. There is sentiment enough against Chinese labor in California to give whites the preference at good wages without aid from legislation, if they will only do as good work." The Independents have about perfected their organization and men are systematically at work in every ward. A committee of one hundred is about made up and that of one hundred is about made up and that committee will have charge of the campaign and will manage it from now on. The work has become so tremendous that it was impossible for a few to manage it and the active men in the movement, those who are representative of the people, who are most deeply interested in it, are being formed into a committee to be divided into subcommittees. In addition to this the ward organization which is going on is progressing in the most satisfactory manner and from every direction are heard reports which the Independents say are more than satisfactory to them. ments he would advise. I am told that this member suggested amendments which would make the bill a splendid one in every respect, and they were adopted by Vogel and his committee. All that was done and completed ten days ago. The bill might have been reported then, but Vogel did not want to pass it. He simply wanted to have the credit of introducing a good bill, and Comfort will second him in it. The bill has been held back unnecessarily for ten days. It may be held for a day or two longer or it may be reported at once. The reason it has been held back is that there are now only nine more working days, and it will take six meetings to put it through: It is now practically imposput it through: It is now practically impossible to pass it, and Vogel knows it. He has no idea that it will be passed but he will be credited with reporting an excellent bill. If that bill stood the least chance in the world of passing, it would not be reported in its present shape. But campaign ported in its present shape. But campaign material must be made, and Vogel and Comfort mean to report the bill and them say that they urged it but the Assembly would not put it through. Wait a day or two at the outside and you will see a first-class gas bill go in. Wait until the Assembly adjourns and you will find that bill dead."

BARRETT'S ALLEGIANCE.

He Was Both a Mason and a Member of the Catholic Church, NEW YORK, March 25 .- A correspondent of the Sun writes to announce that Lawrence Barrett was a Catholic and a Mason and then proceeds to criticise the Catholic Church for administering the last rites and ignoring in the case of a rich man, the law which is rigidly observed in the case of a poor one. The Swa inquired at Masonic headquarters and found that Barrett was a Royal Arch Mason, connected with Manhattan Chapter, 184. Father Sherman was then seen, and he said that he had heard Barrett say he was an Irish Catholic, and he did not know until just before his death that he was a Mason. Not being connected with the parish in which the Windsor Hotel is located, he went to Archbishop Corrigan and asked permission to adbishop Corrigan and asked permission to ad-minister the last sacrament. The Archbishop consented, and Father Sherman then said that Barrett was a Mason. "Ah," said the that Barrett was a Mason. "Ah," said the Archbishop, "but there will be no Masonic rites?" Father Sherman assured him that there would not be. Continuing, Father

WANTED IN CHICAGO

Shoplifter Williams Said to Be a Professional Thief and Burglar. When Officer Messer of the Central District arrested Frank B. Williams yesterday afteroon on the charge of petit larceny he took nto custody a professional thief and shoplifter, who is at the present time wanted in Chicago on the charge of burglary. About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Williams entered the store of the Hopkins-Weller Drug Co., 209 the store of the Hopkins-Weller Drug Co., 209
North Second street, and purchased a small bottle of perfumery.
While waiting for the clerk to attend to him the customer stood against a counter covered with packages of playing cards. A salesman named Dress thought there was something wrong and, as Williams left the store, blocked the way and called in Officer Messer. In a box which the customer carried under his arm was found twelve packages of cards. This morning Detective Pat Lawler saw Williams in the hold-over and at once recognized him as Frank Williams, alias Sherman, who was arrested in St. Louis in 1886 for shoplifting at the establishment of the Hart & Duff Hat Co. He managed to beat this case and disappeared. His ment of the Hart & Duff Hat Co. He managed to beat this case and disappeared. His picture was taken, however, and is now numbered 89 in the rogue's gallery. About two years later another picture of the man, now in the Rogue's Gallery numbered 88 was received from Chicago with the information that Williams was wanted in that city for burglarly. The Chicago authorities will be notified of the flost. In the mean time the prisoner is being held at the Four Courts on a warrant charging him with petit larceny in the theft of the cards. The Hopkins Meller Drug Co. has lost several hundred dollars' worth of property within the past year through shoplifters and Williams has often been seen about the place.

OLD MISER PAINE.

A Remarkable Incident Recalled by the Death of C. F. Chickering.

HIDDEN WEALTH RESTORED TO THE RIGHTFUL HEIRS.

The Life of a Man Whose Grandfather Was a Signer of the Declaration of Independence-The Confidence He Reposed in the Honor of the Piano Maker-A Strange Story.

NEW YORK, March 25 .- The death of Chas. calls one of the most remarkable incidents

James Henry Paine, who died on Dec. 23, 1885, in an attic on Bleecker street, this city, was know as "Old Miser Paine." He was the grand nephew of Robert Treat Pa ci the singers of the Declaration of Independence. He inherited on najority a large property father's estate and of loaning money on the street at high rates of interest ined an unenviable notoriety for his practice of loaning money on stocks and then bearing the stocks through the columns of the newspapers on which he was employed as a financial reporter, so as to keep his securities as long as possible while religiously col-lecting his monthly per cents.

LIVED ON CHARITY. For nearly three years prior to his death, Paine was estranged from his family and ived absolutely on charity. But he was a mine of wealth in musical knowledge, possessing a fund of almost inexhaustible character. This trait attracted the attention of Mr. Chickering and he aided Paine in many ways. At that time every one supposed him to be penniless, as he lived by begging what he ate and what he wore. But a years before his death his brother, Robert Treat Paine of Boston, said: "James ought be worth $250,000 in his own right. What has become of it?" This question many a head after its utterance.

many a head after its utterance, for there was no answer given nor any explanation from the miser.

James Henry Paine was buried by the same charitable people who had doled out to him the means of his precarious existence and scarcely had he been placed in the grave when a contest was begun in this county over the missing will of the dead miser. The case dragged on and partly a year passed case dragged on and nearly a year passed when Attorney-General Leslie Russell, who was conducting the case for the heirs-at-law, witness he was about to call. This was on

A STRANGE STORY.

Mr. Chamberlain replying in the negative, counsel for the heirs called upon Charles F. Chickering, who was seated in the court. Mr. Chickering rose quietly from his chair and lifting a big bundle that he had been carefully guarding walked up to the witness chair. After answering a few questions he was asked to tell what he had to say. Quietly and without the slightest sign of excitement A STRANGE STORY fore he died. I was brought into communica-tion with him often through his love for music. Though I had heard that he was supmusic. Though I had heard that he was sup-posed to have some money hidden away somewhere I never really knew anything about it. One day, at the close of the sixtles, he came into my office with a bundle in his hand. This is the bundle. He asked me if E. E. Clark of the Order of Rallway Conductors, who has been in constant communication with the affiliated brotherhoods, with every evidence that pressure was being brought to bear to bring about a Union of the Brotherhood and Order of Conductors. This fact, in view of the brotherhood's grievance against the Missouri Pacific Southwestern system, gave rise to rumors of a decisive move being taken in that fight, with I said certainly. again during his life. After the old man's death I remembered the package and took it out of its hiding place one day to see if it con-tained anything worth keeping. I had sup-posed it held nothing more than some old nusical papers. THE MISER'S TREASURE. "Tearing open one corner I caught sight of a roll of bank bills. It seemed to me in the hasty glimpse I caught of them that they hasty gimpse I caught of them that they must amount to many thousands of dollars. I tied the bundle again quickly and took the next train for Boston to see Robert Treat Paine, who I thought was the nearest relative. He said that there were nearer heirs at law than he, and he named the Claggetts of that city. On March 1, in the presence of Sumner and Charles Claggett and my attorney, Mr. Swift, we opened the package. Gold and silver dollars, bank notes by the thousand, certificates of stock and scrip rolled out upon the table. The little old green handkerchief with which the bundle was wrapped, for nearly twenty years, had closewrapped, for nearly twenty years, had do ly guarded treasure amounting to somethin over $400,000. About $14,000 has become of lawed."

This testimony created a most profound impression. After he testified, Mr. Chickering went on to say that he had brought suit as administrator against the proponent Wardwell, to recover some Chicago canal stock as attorney for Mr. Paine.

The heirs at law subsequently obtained the money, bank notes, scrip, etc., surrendered by Mr. Chickering. The fact that a man had voluntarily surrendered so vast a sum of money when there was not a shred of evidence that he possessed it in his custody, was simply proof of Mr. Chickering's sterling honesty.

What a Search of Her Apartments Revealed-The Pistol as an Arbitrator-Tragedies in Which It Played a Prominent Part-A Criminal Collection-The Daily Record of Offenses.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 24.-The detectives ve discovered enough of the career of Miss ura Snowden, the accomplice of Fred Fitz-nmons, the crook and murderer, to stamp her as one of the star adventuresses and blackmailers of the country. A search of her luxuriously furnished apartments led to the finding of her diary and letters, which are rich in sensational information. The letters showed that she induced a friend in the same line to join in a scheme to entrap and blackmail the dark skinned members of the Pan erican Congress during their two days sojourn in this city in 1889. She coolly used a Pittsburg iron manufac-turer to guide at least three of the delegates to her rooms, where, in due time, she made the unwitting diplomats disgorge a goodly sum or face the disgrace of exposure. How many others she blackmailed on this ecasion she will not tell, and her letters do not indicate. Her business instinct led her to keep a regular list of her victims, with their real names and addresses. In this list are not only the names of Pittsburg men prominent in the business community, but poli-ticians and men of affairs of high standing in many of the larger cities clear across the continent. Blackmail was her pet game, and the mystery is how she so long escaped prison, while all the time maintaining openly her position as stenographer and clerk for the

One of the incidents of yesterday was the visit of a New York man who gave no other name than "James Smith," and who claimed to have come to town to ascertain whether Miss Snowden is not the woman he married on short notice in the Metropolis in December, 1888. He says she ran away from him three months after the wedding. From what three months after the wedding. From what he learned of her during their acquaintance and has read of the Snowden woman's career he thinks the two are identical.

It has been learned beyond doubt that Detective Gilkinson's slayer, whose apprehension is due to Miss Snowden's disclosures, is

Frederick C. Fitzsimmons of Brockville,

COMES UP TO-MORROW.

THE PRELIMINARY HEARING OF DASH MAN AND MIDWIFE HOTSON.

The Laura Fitts Case to Begin in Earnes -Mrs. Fitts Ready for the Ordeal and All Preparations Completed-A Sensa-tional "Mysterious Telephone" Point.

The Laura Fitts case comes up in the Cour of Criminal Correction at 10 o'clock to-morrow, the hour set for the preliminary hearing of the cases of George W. Dashmar and Midwise Lou Hotson, charged with hav ng caused the death of the unfortunate girl It is likely that the court-room will again present the remarkable scene witnessed at the beginning of the case, when crowds of ladies appeared at the opening hour, and seats, aisles and doorways were filled with the throngs of femininity. There seems to be a certain pathos and tenderness in the story of the young girl bookkeeper's sad death which appeals with peculiar force to the female heart, and which is more than likely to be increased as the case grows under the testimony to be given from the witness stand during the hearing. It is this probability that fills the minds of the female spectators with this most eager expectancy, for behind those developments lies the possibility of clearing welopments lies the possibility of clearing away the mystery of Laura Fitts' death.

MRS. Fitts WILL APPEAR.

Mrs. Fitts, the mother of the dead girl, will be on hand at the hearing to morrow. She was seen by her lawyer, John W. Riddle, last night, and is much improved in health, expressing her desire to see the case under sattless than the characters of the clark of the course of the clark of the course of the clark of the course of the clark pressing her desire to see the case under satisfactory headway, and stating that she now felt strong enough for the ordeal awaiting her. With that assurance steps are being taken by the prosecution to have their case in entire readiness when the hearing begins at the hour set. Mr. Riddle had a long conference with Gov. Chas. P. Johnson this morning, after which he went to the Four Courts to see that all the witnesses for the prosecution had been personally served by the Deputy Sheriffs. This was done, and similar action was taken by was done, and similar action was taken by the hwyers for the defense, Martin & Bass, representing Geo. W. Dashman, and Mar-shall McDonald, retained by Midwife Hotson. With these preliminaries attended to, the Fitts case will now almost certainly come to a

A TOUCHING CONTRAST. When it does, and the principals in the legal inquiry following Laura Fitts' mysterious death appear once more face to face, there will be a touching contrast presented. The last time Mrs. Fitts and "May Jen-The last time Mrs. Fitts and "May Jen-nings," otherwise Mrs. "Lou" Hotson, con-fronted one another in Chief Harrigan's of-fice at the Four Courts the contrast between the two women under the shadow of the Fitts tragedy was pitiful enough, but it will be given added emphasis to morrow owing to some sad developments of the past two weeks. The parents of the dead girl are compelled to appear now as almost poverty-stricken and dependent upon gratuitious legal service for the prosecution of their case. They are homeless and without any means of support. Deprived by her death of the help of this daughter, the father disabled by rheumatism and the mother prostrated with grief, the two old people have literally been "sold out" of house and home, and, compelled to leave the residence, 2508 be given added emphasis to-morrow owing to compelled to leave the residence, 2800 Morgan street, where Laura died, they have between the living since with some faithful friends who stood by than in this hour of sore distress. A SENSATIONAL POINT.

The attorneys for Dashman and Mrs. Hotson express their entire confidence of securing the discharge of their clients from the evidence produced at the preliminary hearing. The prose-cution is equally certain that they will be held. One significant and dramatic minor point is going to be developed into a leading feature of the case. It is outside the two main points of the identification of Dashman as the man who took laura. Fitts away from as the man who took Laura Fitts away from as the man who took Laura Fitts away from home on the night of Wednesday, Jan. 28, and of Mrs. Louise Hotson as the woman "May Jennings," who brought her back home on the morning of Thursday, Jan. 29, but it stands directly between these two events and is full of startling possibilities. The point in question is as to the action of Dashman when he left old Mr. Fitts in the store of Macdonald Bros. on that Thursday morning and went out to "telephone" to friends who Macdonald Bros. on that Thursday morning and went out to "telephone" to friends who knew where Laura spent the night previous.

THE MYSTERIOUS TELEPHONE MESSAGE.

When the distracted father called on him that day Dashman apparently knew nothing of Laura's whereabouts. He promised to find out. There was a telephone in the store where they were but he did not use that. He left old man Fitts pacing up and down the floor in an agony of dread apprehension and went to some other point from which to telephone. The telephoning took half an hour, but when Dashman returned to Mr. Fitts he reassured the old gentleman very

And she was, having been carried back by the mysterious "May Jennings," otherwise Midwife "Lou". Hotson, according to whose story she accidentally applied for lodging about the same time that Dashman was doing his "telephoning" from some unknown quarter to Laura's "friends" at some other quarter equally unknown. The prosecution thinks that there is a damaging mystery in the strange coincidence of Dashman's knowledge that Laura was then on her way home, and the fact that Mrs. Hotson happened to be her accidental escort, which will be difficult for the defense to explain. The whole case promises to be full of sensational and widely conflicting testimony when once under headway.

The Gems to Be Found at the Mermod & Jaccard Jewelry Establishment. From the East comes the pretty fashion of making Easter presents, just as we do at Christmas, and the Mermod-Jaccard Jewelry Co., always in the lead, have planned and carried out to perfection this season a grand Easter opening which has never before been surpassed in this country for beauty of # brill-lancy of effect; not a surprising fact when one considers the richness and variety of mate-rials at hand with which to obtain a result so charming. For several days past their Easter show-window has attracted the attention of every passer-by with its groups of lilles and ferns and delicate trailing vines, forming a levely setting for a large cornacopia of white silk besprent with gold, from the rose-lined opening of which is pouring thousands of dollars' worth of the most precious gems, chiefly diamonds, rubies and sapphires, brooches, ear-rings and finger-rings, beautiful Easter offerings—all of them.

beautiful Easter offerings—all of them. Entering the door one is almost bewildered by the richness of the display of sil ver and cut glass and art bric-a-brac sparkling and glistening under the radiance of hundreds of electric lights. The first thing to attract the attention is the case of diamonds, in which may be seen the $7.00 "Corsaglere," composed of hundreds of diamonds set in nineteen different pieces, to be worn all together upon the corsage or as a coronet for the hair, or separated into pendants, pins, ear rings, etc. There, too, is a superb opal, encircled by diamonds and pendants and strings of pearls. On all sides are cases filled with jewels of every description, rings, bracelets, wreaths, etc., an inspection of which leads one naturally to the northern end of the salesroom, where 100 electric lights illuminate the tables upon which are displayed he tables upon which are displayed housands of dollars' worth of the most thousands of dollars' worth of the most superb specimens of cut-glass ever brought to this city, each piece satin finished and of the most artistic and newest cut and design. Turning one's back reluctantly upon this glittering display one passes through aisles devoted to the finest and rarest specimens of chinaware and bric-a-brac to be found in the foreign markets, Dresden, Sevres, Teplitz, Doolton, everything that the most fastidious taste could desire for use or decoration. Passing through sire for use or decoration. Passing through aisies lined on either side with show cases, in which may be found everything that can be desired in odd, artistic and useful silverware, knives, forks, spoons, bowls, platters, cups, trays, etc., one comes suddenly upon the grand piece de reststance of this superb Easter display, "The Silver Court," which presents a picture from Aladdin's Palace. It is situated in the center of the establishment, running back toward the west. Over the entrance is a fretwork archway formed of filigree silver, the key-stone being a representation of the Mermod-Jaccard Jewelry Co. trade mark—a large crown, sire for use or decoration. Passing through Jewelry Co. trade mark—a large crown, which is formed of filigree silver, the points represented by electric lights. The sides of this court are formed of superb glass cases, in which are displayed exquisite plush boxes of every line, making lovely settings for their rich contents, solid silver pieces of every shape and design, bowls, tete-a-tete sets, flagons, and design, bowls, tete-a-tete sets, hagons, trays, fruit dishes, tea services, everything which can be imagined. On the right hand side is one immense case, in which may be seen the grand Sevres vase which was the triumph of the Paris Exposition, flanked on each side by two superb tables, onyx and glit stands with movable circular tops, which are indeed works of art. One of them represents ndeed works of art. One of them represents Louis XV. and the celebrities of his court, twelve medallion porcelain pictures set in onyx and gilt bronze. The other table is similar in design but much larger, the pictures representing Catharine de Medici and the principal personages of her court eighteen small portraits circled. Medici and the principal personages of her court, eighteen small portraits, circled around a large picture of the Medicis. On either side of these tables stand the royal crystal candelabra, measuring seven feet in height, with thirty-two candles and hundreds of prisms catching and reflecting every ray of light. At the entrance to this fairy court is a large case, in which is displayed a multitude of designs in solid silver, chiefly in filligree and repousse work, highly polished, the heavy oxidized silver having given way to burnished dainty designs. Next to this case is set an ideal table for tweive persons. case is set an ideal table for twelve; the napery fine and white as snow, th an exact copy of the royal blue and go for Napoleon, with his crest in the center. Grouped at each plate are all of the necessary knives and forks and spoons, peppers and salts in silver, and cut-glass butter plates and goblets and wine glasses, six in number, at each plate—cordial, wine, the mpage of the plate cordial, wine, champagne, sherry and hock, the ast, a delicate tinted Bohemian glass. Cut-last, a delicate tinted Bohemian glass. Cut-glass bowls and caraffes, a cut-glass epergne, and crystal candelabra at each end, all con-tribute to a most dazzling and beautiful ef-fect. Beyond this table is a case filled with useful tollette appendages in stering silver, and over all is a brilliant array of electric lights, producing an effect which cannot be described. Easter cards have not been over-looked this season, and besides the exquisite and rich novelties of the season there are hundreds of pretty trifles at moderate cost. DER, 85. G. H. PLAIN DESERTIONS.

Judge Klein in Division 1 of the Circuit Court this morning passed upon a number of divorce cases in which the defendants had not chosen to make any appearance. It was as plain a lot of desertions as was ever presented to a court. Mrs. Caroline Schultz told the story of Charles H. G. A. Schulz's failure to make a model husband. He deserted her for the third time Feb. 8, 1889, four years after their marriage. His present whereabouts are un-known, and she is principally concerned to known, and she is principally concerned to have the custody of her child, Elizabeth, aged 5 years, awarded her. She got a decree. Mrs. Sophia Stengel's story was quite brief. Albert Stengel had become her husband May 18, 1888, and deserted her July 1, 1888. She wanted her former name, Dellert, restored to her. Albert had had two wives before he married Mrs. Dellert. She had a little property and he wanted her to give it to him. She refused, saying she wanted to keep it for her children. He said: "There can be only one boss in a house, and that boss should be the husband. If you are to be the boss, I one boss in a house, and that boss should be the husband. If you are to be the boss, I go." And go he did. The decree was granted. Olivia E. Murrey and Daniel H. Murrey were married Oct. 25, 1885, in St. Charles. On Jan. 6, 1887, Daniel took his departure for parts unknown. Why he left her she could not tell. He was kind to her while they lived together and there was no quarral. She was Louisa Miller and Louis Andrew Miller were married Sept. 28, 1889, in St. Louis, and parted Nov. 24, 1889, when Louis Andrew left. Mrs. Miller asked that her maiden fiame, Gaffron, be restored. Her prayers were granted.

Marian McLaughlin complained of his wife, Mary Ellen McLaughlin, who deserted him in January, 1887, four months after their marriage. There was a divorce.

George W. Plerson was granted a divorce from Naomi M. Plerson, to whom he was married June 5, 1871. He claimed that she deserted him Jan. 8, 1883, and has since remained away. They were married in Adrian, Mich., and lived most of their married life in Toledo, O., and Geona, O. Toledo, O., and Géona, O. Mrs. Abbie Irene Strickling, an Olive street boarding-house keeper, was granted a di-vorce from James A. Strickling, with the restoration of the name of her first husband, restoration of the name of her first husband, Irish. They were married on St. Patrick's Day, 1887. On May Day, James A. deserted his wife. Their trouble was Mrs. Strickling's children by her first husband. James wanted her to send them to her parents; she refused and he thereupon refused to contribute further to her support. The case was partially heard early in February, but Mrs. Strickling could not show then that in the brief period she and her husband lived together she treated him with kindness and affection. She did that today and got her decree.

Drew is a notorious thief and burglar, who has served several terms in the Work-house. On his forehead he bears the mark of a bullet sent after him several years ago by a Work-house guard while in the act of attempting to escape from that institution. For several months he had been running with Ike Burns, who was about two weeks ago arrested by Detectives Fitzgerald and Frese and lodged in jail charged with an abominable crime. Since his partner's arrest Drew has on several occasions approached two of the State's witnesses in the action against Burns and threatened to give them trouble in case they testined against the defendant. A few days are one of these witnesses complained of Drew to Chief of Detective Desmond, saying that he was afraid the man meant to do him some harm. As soon as he could be located Drew was arrested, being found by Detectives Fitzgerald and Frese yesterday afternoon at the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets. He was given until 5 o'clock this afternoon to get out of the city.

FINE ARTS IN ST. LOUIS.

One of Millet's Masterpieces on Exhibiti An important work by the great French artist, Millet, is now on exhibition at the Museum of Fine Arts. To lovers of art the name of Millet is sufficient, as he stands con fessedly one of the great masters of the modern French school, and in his special line, th delineation of French peasant life, has never been surpassed or equaled. To the general public he is known best as the author of "The Angelus," which was sold last year for the and sold last year of the fabulous price of $100,000, and which after being exhibited in some of the principal cities of this country was repurchased by a Frenchman. It did not reach St. Louis, and this is the first opportunity offered the citizens of the Future Great of seeing one of the masterpieces of Great of seeing one of the masterpieces of this great painter. The picture is about 2½x3 feet, and is the property of Mr. C. T. Yerkes of Chicago. It is entitled "Les Abbateurs du Cochon," and as its name indicates, represents a homely farm yard incident, dignified, however, by the treatment, by its perfect simplicity and truth to nature, and by the excellence of the technique.

Born of French peasants, accustomed from his earliest childhood to the rude tasks and simple pleasures of peasant life, Millet was always true to his origin, and even when was always true to his origin, and even when in the height of his fame, lionized by the world of art and fashion, he continued to seek his inspiration among the familiar scenes that he knew so well, in which he had lived and among which his last days were spent. He painted what he felt and what he knew, and in this lies the great secret of his power. The French peasant was not to him merely a picturesque model, hired for the occasion and posed with all the art or grace that the action demanded. His models were his kinsfolk, his relatives, his friends; the actions in which he represented them, whether devoutly bending in prayer, scattering the seed over a ploughed field or gathering the sheep in the fold, were those in which he had himself often been a participator. Consequently in the fold, were those in which he had himself often been a participator. Consequently one finds in his figures a naturalness of attitude and expression, that perfect unconsciousness of being looked at, which are essential to the truly great figure painting. One forgets that it is a picture that is before him; the curtain is almoly raised from a scene him; the curtain is simply raised from a scene in real life; the lightning flash of genius has fastened forever on canvas the expression of a momentary action or of a genuine feeling. It is this sincerity of expression which makes the great work of art, whether its subject be a stolid, toll-worn peasant or the most spir-itual conception of the religious enthusiast.

The picture at the Museum is an excellent example of Millet's work. The composition is perfect, though apparently unstudied; the coloring is remarkably rich. The brilliant tones, which a less gifted artist would have carefully shunned for fear of producing gaudiness are fearlessly opposed with the precision of a mas-ter of the brush. Every detail and acopposed with the precision of a master of the brush. Eevery detail and accessory help to tell the story, which rude and simple as it may seem, the killing of a pig in a barn yard, becomes transformed by the genuis of the artist into a pathetic and truthful epitome of the simple laborious life of a coarse garments, unidealized by any effort coarse garments, uniteatized by any effort to obtain a merely pretty or sentimental effect, stamp them as belonging to that group of the world's workers who do the hard manual labor that is the corner stone of all our wealth and culture, and whom we may well recognize as brothers and sisters. The apostle of this class among painters, the man whose genius has made them on canvas the study and de-light of the world, who has drawn thousands of dollars from the purses of the rich for the privilege of seeing every day how a poor French peasant bends beneath a load of wood, or how two simple tillers of the soil bend reverently over their evening devotions, is Jean Francois Millet.)

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO AUDIT WOODRUFF'S ACCOUNTS.

The Governor's Message to the Legislature To-Day-The Duty of the Members Defined-Gov. Francis' Appointments-Proceedings in Other General Assen blies-Governor of Connecticut.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 25,-Mr. South ors' and Treasurers' Accounts, reported this that there were several boxed vaults of the treasury con taining over $2,500,000 in bonds, coupons, scrip and certificates which were opons, scrip and certificates which were of valid credit to ex-Treasurer Woodruff.
Nearly all of these securities ought to be destroyed, but could not be so disposed of because there was no one to certify to their worthlessness to the Burning Board. Woodruff could not do it because he was no longer in office and Treasurer Morrow would not make the certification to the Board, having refused to accept the securities unless so ordered by the Legislature. The examination of the contents of these boxed revealed Woodruff's additional shortage of $69,000. The ex-Treasurer claims he has boxed revealed Woodruff's additional shortage of $69,000. The ex-Treasurer claims he has securities in his possession that will offset $64,000 of this amount. Mr. South presented with the report a resolution providing for the appointment of a joint committee to meet within ten days after the adjournment of the General Assembly, with authority to straighten out affairs in the Treasurer's office. Consideration of the report and resolution were postponed until Saturday.

Shortly afterwards a message was received from the Governor in which he said that on account of the few days, remaining before adjournment he felt it his duty to call the General Assembly's attention to the anomalous condition of the Treasury. The ex-Treasurer admitted a further shortage, but what and how much was not known, nor could it be ascertained under the present circumstances. The ex-Treasurer had in his hands a very large amount of funds and effects with which he was charged, and for which he claimed credits. These consisted principally of canceled bonus, etc., and had been tendered by Woodruff as proper vouchers. But the Treasurer had refused and still refused to receive and receipt. Therefore under the circumstances a final settlement with Woodruff was impossible. No one but the present Treasurer could relieve him of the bonds. The matter was of very great importance, and demanded very prompt and speeds action.

THE CALIFORNIA INVESTIGATION.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 25.—The committee appointed to investigate the charges of bribery in connection with the finding of scraps of paper in the State Library during the late Senatorial contest, sent their report to the Senate yesterday afternoon. They reported that the money had come from the Southern Pacific Railroad Co., and that within thirteen hours after it arrived here it was in the State Library, but who received it there, or for what purpose it was handled the committee did not determine.

eachers at the Jefferson School Find in Minnie Goldstein's Treatment Cause for a Declaration-The Child's Story-Dr. Murphy's Statement.

The te chers of the Jefferson School Kinder-garten at Ninth and Wash streets are up in arms against the vaccine physician at Third District Police and the entire system of vaccination. Minnie Goldstein, a delicate little girl 7 years of age, attending the Jefferson Kindergarten, was sent to the Third District Station with er sister last Monday to be vaccinated. Yesterday she appeared at the chool and showed Mrs. Nievergelder, school and showed Mrs. Nievergelder, the Directress of the Kindergarten, her "vaccination." It was a network of deep scratches, two inches long and about one inch wide, on which a scab was beginning to form. The little one in telling her story to Mrs. Nievergelder, said she went into the large room on the second floor of the Third District Station, and when she saw the other girls cry she refused to be vaccinated. The man that sweeps the sidewalks, she said, caught hold of her and when she tried to get away he slapped her face. Two men caught hold of her then, she claims, and while she screamed and tugged

The teachers, after seeing the wound on the Goldstein child's arm, have vowed that they will not send another child to be vaccinated, but will compel the doctor to call at the school, where they feel at home and will not be frightened.

Charles Thorling, a notorious confidence worker and three-card monte man, was ar at the corner of Broadway and Clark avenue, this morning, and is now at the Holdover at the Four Courts. On Oct. 12, 1888, Thorling was arrested by the same officers for beating a farmer out of $10 at the Union Depot by means of the three-card monte game. A loaded revolver was found on his person and he was sent into the First District Police Court. Judge Cady fined him $200 for carrying concealed weapons and $500 for vagrancy. The $200 fine was afterwards commuted to $25 and paid, after which Thorling was given hours to get out of the city. They applied for a license, and he was reducing the application to writing when he discovered that though Miss Leslie is 20 years old, and two years past infancy in the eyes of the law, Lord is but 19 years old, with an advance toward 20, and so has nearly two years to travel before is years old, with an advance toward 20, and so has nearly two years to travel before he will be permitted by the law to call himself, with force and effect, a man. The couple had, they partially admitted, eloped, and so had not brought with them Mr. Lord's consent to their marriage. The infant (in the legal sense) said he had talked to his father concerning his proposed marriage with Miss Leslie, and had falled to win his approval of the union. Mr. Lord had told his son to do as he pleased, and added "I won't consent, and I won't object."

That was not a sufficient authorization for the marriage license clerk, and he told the elopers they must bring him ample evidence of Mr. Lord's consent or the Recorder of St. Louis could not be a party to the marriage. They went away sadder than they had come.

THE COUNCIL CONTEST.

The Mayor's effort to control the nominstion or election of Councilmen is something worse than a serious deviation from official propriety. It is obviously an attempt to enlarge the powers of his office by nullifying the checks and restrictions imposed upon it by the Scheme and Charter. So far as he succeeds in securing Council pliant to his will, just so far doe he succeed in thwarting the purpose of the fundamental law from which he derives his own power and authority.

To secure the Council's independence of the Mayor its election is separated from his as far as possible. He is compelled to serve with his predecessor's appointees during the first two years of his administration and to submit his four-year ap pointments at the beginning of his third rear to a new Council with half its members fresh from the people. If the charte permitted him to appoint these new mem pers we should soon want the Council abolished as a useless appendage and a nuisance. But if the people permit him to dictate in a party convention the Council nominations and then ratify his slate at the polls they will practically defeat the purpose of the charter and abolish the useulness of the Council.

The people know what the Mayor' struggle with the old Council was about, and can guess what the result of giving him control over the new one will be. The four-year appointments and the Board of Public Improvements will be turned over to a spoils combination of well-known bosses and boodlers. The checks of our municipal system will be overthrown. The only way to prevent the triumph of this revolutionary movement is by electing the Independent Municipal ticket, the only one making a straight fight against it."

IT seems to be agreed among those who are familiar with the Sioux situation that whether there will be an outbreak or not this spring depends upon the treatmen which the Indians receive from the Government's representatives on the reservations. The situation, in other words, in about what it has always been in the case of the more savage tribes. If the Indians are fairly treated and receive their dues there will be peace, but otherwise there will be imminent danger of war. A fool or a rascal among the Indian agents of the Northwest could create havoc, and the responsibility, therefore, resting upon the Indian Bureau is heavy.

To all inquiries he declared that his legiate course. He told all that he intended legiste course. He told all that he intended to become a physician and that the place he started was for that purpose.

To help along his business Harris held a meeting of which, it is said, he was chairman, secretary and quorum and thus elected several representative men members of what he called "The Neptune Club." This "club" had rooms over his cafe and there, according to the reports of the police, liquors were sold had rooms over his care and there, according to the reports of the police, liquors were sold in violation of the law, gambling games in-dulged in, and other and worse things done. Some of the newly and queerly elected mem-bers of the club visited the rooms over the Cookman avenue cafe, but many more re-fused to do so. When finally Harris was arrested for violation of the law, he threat-

At midnight her parents heard her cry out from pain and they called up Drug Clerk Herman who, after doing all he could to relieve the girl's suffering, suggested that a physician be called in. Messengers were sent out and soon three doctors were at the headside. They were Drs. Griswold. Johnson sent out and soon three doctors were at the bedside. They were Drs. Griswold, Johnson and Kinmouth and they arrived in that order. They exhausted all their knowledge and available means to relieve the patient, who, however, remained in great agony until 2 a. m. Oct. 26, when death resulted. The physicians then consulted and agreed that some violent poison had caused Anna Jackson's death, and they reported the fact to Coroner Yan Wort of Long Branch, who held an autopsy, which proved the correctness of the physicians' opinion.

In the meantime Charles H. Williams, the father of Mrs. Jackson, had made a search of his daughter's room for the vial or box which contained the poison. His search was unsuccessful until he went to the bed on which his daughter died. There were three mattresses on it, and between the second and the bottom one he found a small bottle of the kind used by druggists generally. It, however, had no label or other distinguishing marks. In it were a couple of drops of liquid, which proved to be corrosive sublimate. An analysis of the stomach of Anna Jackson proved that it was corrosive sublimate that caused her death. Then the question agose: "Where did she obtain the poison?" That question has never been answered.

BARR'S BOWER OF BEAUTY.

The Easter Opening of the Great House

Attended by Thousands. Groups of palms and Easter lillie golden-hearted Marguerites about the various entrances to Barr's yesterday betokened s gala day for that mammoth concern. And so it was; their annual spring opening, to which the public had been invited to feast their eyes upon the novelties in every line which had been gathered together to suit the varied tastes of their customers. In the eastern alse were the daintiest fabrics in laces and embroideries for gowns, with every-novelty which the manufacturers have produced in trimmings, countiess designs in passementeries and gimps, in medium and narrow widths, and in all of the fashionable colors. asswell as the black. the public had been invited to feast their ashionable colors, as well as the black, which harmonize with everything. Many of these trimmings are like wreaths of flowers, which have the effect of embroiders when applied. In most of these passe-menteries and gimps, there is a more or less sprinkling of gold, and not unfrequently dewelled effects are introduced, some conjewelled effects are introduced, some conventional design being wrought on gold buillon, with chips of rubles and emeralds and topaz. Of course discriminating taste must be used in the selection of these garnitures, and since there is now no material made for which there is not some appropriate trimming there is now no excuse for the violation of the rules of good taste in the garnituring of feminine apparel. In the next alsie, is shown the wash goods, ginghams and sateens, as wash goods, ginghams and sateens, as dainty in style and coloring as the silks, and while beautiful paterns may be obtained at 10 cents per yard the finer goods are also shown, rivaling in price the silks. In the center isle there is a brave display in linens, table linens and searts of the finest texture. able linens and scarfs of the finest texture rich in embroidery and drawn work, a delight to the eyes of the aesthetic housekeeper. On the other side of this aisle may be found the black goods, for which Barr's has always been famous. After this asise comes the dress goods counters, about which the ladies swarmed all day like bees in a flower garden, and well they might, for the novelties in dress goods are very rich this season in beauty of design and coloring.

season in oeatry of design and coloring.
Shaggy effects are shown in the homespuns and camel's hairs, but the filmy surfaces are so skiffully woven as to produce do suspicion of heaviness. One never wearies of camel's hair, for it is the delight of the roman who aims at artistic effects in her woman who aims at artistic effects in her gowning, and this year it comes in all of the new delicate shades with tufted effects. There is also a crepe cloth introduced this season in all of the new shades which will prove effective. For something a little more dressy there is a beautiful line of cashmeres, and Henriettas with delicate amproducties, to be used in combine. delicate embroideries, to be used in combins tion with the plain goods. For more cer monious occasions nothing can compare wit the light-weight silks, which have never bee o pretty or so popular before. In India, thina and Japan silks the designs are lovely. China and Japan silks the designs are lovely. Upon a ground work of black or white, or any of the many exquisite shades of blue, or lilac or red, are laid in the most careless fashion, crocuses, or tulips, or purple flags, or racines of wisteria, with their green foliage, the flowers of the most exquisite natural tints. Challies may be the silks. There is to be a revival of grens

the silks. There is to be a revival of grena-dine, and some lovely patterns are shown in black, besprent with colored flowers. Upon the second floor was displayed THE BONNETS, the fitting accompaniments for those lovely dress fabrics, the bonnets, and the wraps. In the latter capes are the leading novelty. They are of fine broadcloth, in all of the newest shade of tan and gray and blue, braided in silk and gold, with puffed shoulder effects and high braided collar, bordered with effects and high braided collar, bordered with ostrich feathers. A pretty garment is a white yachting cloth blazer, embroidered in gold, the design being in anchors and ropes. Then there are jackets of all styles with full slik or muslin shirt waists to wear beneath the low cut vest. There are a number of novelties in long garwaists to wear beneath the low cut vest. There are a number of novelties in long garments displayed, the most unique of which is a light cream camel's hair plaided in light lines, with a twelve-inch cream gros grain ribbon frilled about the neck, forming a wide flat fichu and carried down the front in long scarf ends. This department is also replete with novelties for misses and children, lovely combinations of wool and velvet and a full line of Berlin suits in exquisite designs and colors for children from 4 to 14 years old. Passing by a full line of nobby suits for boys, one is ushered into the millinery department, in which may be found the most exquisite confections in headwear in all of the leading styles. A plateau of black open work braid has a puffing of yellow velvet around the crown, with a loose bunch of blue bells on top. A black imported chapeau is turned up at the back, with bows of lace typing in a cluster of morning glories. A green chip is trimmed with purple velvet and pansies. A large fancy straw, black, has a gold lace crown and is trimmed with a cluster of arbutus and green velvet poppies. There are also toques and little bonnets of every style and design, the flowers with which they are ornamented rivaling nature in their beauty. These and a hundred other lovely hats and bonnets go to make up this charming display.

The Sherman Statue.

The Sherman Statue Committee met yesterday afternoon in the Mayor's office to perfect arrangements for raising the necessary money for putting up a heroic equestrian statue of Gen. Sherman in front of the new City Hall. Mr. Morrow suggested that the money be raised by fi subscriptions and the plan was adopted.

Maj. Eugene Weigel was chosen Secretary of the committee and then it was decided to add fitteen more members.

Geo. R. Mann, the architect, Comptroller Stevenson and several other city officials were added to the committee list.

Messrs. James E. Yeatman, Charles Parsons and Richard Hospes were appointed a committee on finance and instructed to begin receiving subscriptions.

The entire subject was discussed at some length and this committee adjourned to meet on next Tuesday, in the Mayor's office.

BLAINE'S POSITION.
On this point, however, Mr. Blaine has remained immovable. His position is that the authorities must either determine among themselves what concessions to offer to American manufacturers' interests or come to Washington prepared to talk the whole subject over informally. In other words, Mr. Blaine having gone upon record in favor of Blaine having gone upon record in favor of ect over informally. In other words, Mr. ull reciprocity declines to construct a partia tcheme, even as a basis of discussion, and puts the responsibility upon Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues. The Canadian envoys, therefore, are simply free to come upon Mr. Blaine's terms or to stay away. Their speedy arrival is regarded here as a certainty.

The State Department view is that the United States has everything to gain and nothing to lose by delay in this matter of reciprocity with Canada. The manner in which the resources of diplomacy are being used in behalf of the Canadian Government with regard to proceedings entirely preliming. used in behalf of the Canadian Government with regard to proceedings, entirely preliminary to the real opening of reciprocity negotiations is regarded as an evidence that Sir John Macdonald realizes that Canada will be more in need of reciprocity a year hence than now and will be likely then to offer larger concessions to get it than would be granted by Sir John Macdonald under any circumconcessions to get it than would be by Sir John Macdonald under any

At the Central Stock Yards in Jersey City we built one last winter and have another in course of erection. We have one in New York and will build another this year. We can deliver dressed beef in the old country at allower rate than if the cattle were alive. The English ships do the carrying now and charge exhorbitant prices. Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, southwes orner of Broadway and Olive streets, has een, for the past two days, the Mecca to which all St. Louis femininity has turned its which all St. Louis femininity has turned its footsteps, the raison d'etre being the grand Easter opening of wraps, hats and parasols, the crowning accessories of a well-dressed woman's tollette. The large plate-glass windows afforded to the passing throngs a glimpse of what was to be seen within, and the contemplation of the dainty millinery, exquisite flowers, ribbons and laces, rich parasols and fans, and nobby and expensive wraps and jackets, so tastefully presented to the public view, proved an irresistible temptation to nine women out of ten, and the result was that by an early hour upon the question of reciprocity with en, and the result was that by an early hour aces-near by the layette for the baby, no and pinafores for the wee toddlers and little lassles, every tuck and frill of lace and bit of embroidery suggestive of the dainty little creatures who will wear them. The assortment of jackets in both plain and dressy styles is simply so bewildering that it is impossible to give any accurate idea of these pretty outing garments. They are in all of the beautiful cloths and shadings of this season's production, and may be had very stylish, in the cheaper, as well as high priced goods. With many of these jackets come the Swiss shirt fronts made in lawn, French fiannel and silk. In shawis there is an elegant display for spring and early summer wear. They come in all of the fine French and Fersian fabrics, in stripes, figured and plain, also Indian, Decca and Chuda shawis and other fine novelties. blouses, very dainty, and all of the new designs shown by the manufacturers and importers.

In parasols there is an endless variety, and lace is largely employed in their manufacture. Quite a number of parasols are shown to match the hats, which are far more beautiful and artistic this season than ever before. The effects are all light and airy, and the flowers dainty and natural to the last degree, not only in their coloring, but also in the natural easy groupings, the long, pliable stems affording a peculiarly graceful effect. Fancy and lace straws ald in carrying out the prevalent idea of lightness as do also the gause-like transparent ribbons and flimy laces, and the shimmer of gold is to be found in everything—the ribbons, the laces, the flowers. It would be impossible to give any adequate idea of the beauty and style of the novelties exhibited in this display of millinery. They must be seen in order that the richness of the material and dainty effects may be appreciated. There are no two confections alike, and there are styles to be found here not obtainable eisewhere. In many cases a parasol is finished to match the hat: for instance, a broad brimmed plateau of black open work straw, turned up at the back with a loose bunch of scarlet velvet tuilps, matching the velvet ribbon which is run in the brim; has a parasol of black silk covered with black net, embroidered in red tuilps. A lovely little bonnet of cloth of gold, covered with corn flowers, has a parasol to match, and a toque of open work braid trimmed with moss green velvet and purple orchids; has the parasol trimmed with this fashionable combination of green and violet. green and violet.

LED INTO A TRAP.

How the Sugar Trust Hoodwinked the Jobbing Trade.

BUT THE BARONS WILL BE UNABLE TO GET THE DRAWBACK.

The Law Under Which This Allowan Granted by the Government-A Plan of Exportation Which Will Fail to Work-Prices Will Take a Big Drop After April 1.

NEW YORK, March 25 .- The Times has the following: The unsettled condition of the sugar market, in view of the fact that the new sugar tariff goes into effect April 1, has been the cause of some very wild stories as to gaged in at present. The details of a startling scheme which the trust was reported to be about to carry through were given to the public yesterday by a morning paper, by a scheme which proves to be absolutely impos-sible, as well as illegal.

drop to 4½ cents in consequence of the re-moval of the duty on raw material of certain uality. Meanwhile the trust has overesti mated the supply which would be needed during the month of March, when of course the products of duty paid material will have

Consequently about two weeks ago they found themselves with nearly a hundred thousand barrels of refined sugar on hand more than would be needed to supply the market before April. This sugar had been market before April. This sugar had been made from duty paid material and must be sold at 6 cents or more to save great loss. Large shipments to foreign markets were naturally the result of this state of things and here comes the basis of the sensational story of yesterday.

THAT DRAWBACK.

All exported sugars manufactured from imported materials are all allowed a drawback of 2½c a pound, which is supposed to make up for the duties paid on the raw material. It was at once concluded that the large shipments abroad were nothing more or less than consignments of sugar upon which the drawback of 2½c a pound was to be collected from the Government. After the which the drawback of 24sc a pound was to be collected from the Government. After the new tariff went into effect, under which sugars of certain grades are to be free, the astute "barons" of the trust intended, of course, to re-import the sugar on which they had already received the above 24sc a pound in drawback and sell it at the new price of 44sc, thus covering the loss which had threatened them.

however, very quickly extracted yesterday by men who are familiar with the law, as far as the sugar trade is con-

QUOTING THE LAW.

Chief Clerk of Customs Jos. J. Couch smiled knowingly when the matter was brought to his attention and turned to the law on the subject. He then quoted the following provision as to what is on the free list:

Articles, the growth, produce and manufacture of he United States, when returned after having been exported without having been advanced in value or mproved in condition by any process of manufacture red in total this paragraph shall not apply so rided, that this paragraph shall not apply so so upon which an allowance of drawback has made—the reimportation of which is fresby bited except upon payment of duties equal to awbacks allowed or to any article manufactured naded warehouses and exported under any pro-

This would of course prevent any such attempt on the part of the refineries here as had been indicated. A very widely prevalent feeling of dissatisfaction exists among the jobbers of the sugar trade in consequence of the way in which the members of the trust hoodwinked them at the beginning of this month. It was then said that the refinery price would be maintained at least 6% cents a pound throughout the month. At the same time a hint was thrown out that the price might rise to 71-10 even. But a few days after most of the jobbing firms had loaded up at most of the jobbing firms had loaded up at 5%, the refineries dropped to 6%, and now 64, Between 60,000 and 70,000 barrels have also been shipped abroad by the refineries.

One member of the retail firm said yester-day: "There is no doubt that we were led into a trap. The result has been, I think, to react unfavorably on the refineries in the matter of disposing of this supply of duypaid sugar, for the jobbing trade has in turn tried to get rid of the sugar it had been loaded down with, and the trust market has not been as free as it would have been. Sugar has been sold by the retail traders even as low as 5½. Meanwhile it is extremely difficult to get spot sugar here from the re-fineries. They are busy manufacturing sugar in order to meet the demands of the trade April 1."

Cansas City and St. Louis Experts Fail to Agree.

The management of the Sate Board of Grain Inspection continues to give the greatest amount of dissatisfaction consistent with the extent of its field, and the denunciations of the peculiar methods pursued are consequently increasing day by day. St. Louis miliers and commission men have, however, come to the conclusion that bad as is the service here it compares favorably with that in Kansas City. Ever since Chief Expert O'Shea took charge there have been complaints as to the amount of hard wheat that has been graded as No. 2 red, but from recent developments it is evident that

STARTLING FACTS.

Disclosures to Be Made by the New Orleans Grand-Jury.

RECORDS DOCTORED BY THE DEFENSE IN THE HENNESSY CASE.

A Sensational Story Denied by Mr. W. S. Parkerson-An Appeal to the Presilent of the United States-An Element Full of Danger to Good Government in

NEW ORLEANS, March 26.—Some sensational disclosures are made this morning in connec-tion with the Grand-Jury investigation. It is learned that the defense in the Hennessy case made an effort to doctor the records of the electric light company in order to show that the light at the corner of Girod and Basin was burning dimly when the assassination occurred. The defense laid particular stress on the light. An employe of the electric light company, who kept the records, says un-known persons tampered with them and ed the original records in order to show that the lights were poor between the hours of 10:80 and 11:40, when the shooting occurred This employe and two others were summoned by the defense, but were not put on the stand a subpoena duces tecum was also issued for the records, but for some reason they also were not offered, why it is not known.

The report of the Grand jury promises to e startling as Detective O'Malley is said to have had a hand in having the records alto suit the purpose of the defense. The Grand-jury meets again to-morrow.

Morning dispatches say a New York paper to-day contained a card purporting to come from Mr. W. S. Parkerson, who led the citizens' movement here recently, in which among other things Mr. Parkerson is made to say that there has been much useless noise and waste of ink over the just execution of the assassins. Mr. Parkerson was shown the article. He says he has never written a line to any paper concerning the tragedy and has not accepted an offer to write an article on lynching for a syndicate nor does he intend to write a single word to any one touching the trouble.

APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT.

A DANGEROUS ELEMENT IN THE CITIES OF THE UNITED STATES. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 25.-The following letter addressed to the President by William Hosea Ballou, who has been residing in New Orleans for several months, was re-ceived at the Executive Mansion this morn-

Your attention is directed to the menace to the country by a large element of foreign-born people, appealing to a foreign sovereign for revenge on account of an act of the com-nor revenge on account of an act of the community of New Orleans.

I submit that the presence of an immense body of foreigners within the United States not in sympathy with us, our customs and laws, who, whatever the provocation, call upon a foreign country for aid, cannot be depended upon in times of national danger and war, and are constant menerate over recovery. and are a constant menace to our peace and safety. Washington is the place, and you alone are the representative of the sovereign people to whom appeal should be made by all claiming allegiance to this country.

In view of these facts I suggest the need of stringent immigration inspection and restriction, otherwise foreign countries, hostile to us prospectively, will plant large bodies of men and women on this soil who will breed others of their kind, and will rise against us others of their kind, and will rise against us whenever called upon by the government from which they came, while professing quasi allegiance to the United States. While we may regard with pride all foreign-American patriots, the time has come to distrust all who look to a foreign country for protection while claiming loyalty to this country.

With a Revolver.

Walter Stanley was on a glorious tear yesterday afternoon. About 5:30 o'clock he loaded his revolver and proceeded to chase all of his fellow-tenants from the house at 117 South Second street. He was given full sway for about ten minutes. Then Officer Turley put in an appearance and stanley retreated to the roof. There he drew his revolver and defied the blue cont to show his head at the trap door. But Turley was equal to the emergency. He managed to climb on the roof from the window of an adjacent building, and took Stanley unawares by approaching from behind. A fierce scuffie ensued, and then Stanley went down. ## SPORTING NEWS.

This will be the blue ribbon year of the American turf, says the New York WORLD. Never in the history of racing were the pros-Never in the history of racing were the pros-pects so favorable, nor has so much money been invested in racehorses, and never be-fore did the public take such a keen interest in turf matters. Only the Philadelphia law-yer of tradition would be wise enough to tell how many millions of dollars are invested in horsedesh and racing tracks, but for the benefit of the lay reader it may be said that these millions will run well up into nine fig-ures. Last year was a phenomenally sucures. Last year was a phenomenally successful one. Millions of dollars were lost and won by bettors. Fortunes were made in the twinkling of an eye or swept away like a flash of lightning. Over 6,000 races were run, or, to be exact, 5,208. This year, it is safe to say, there will be over seven thousand races run at the 250 meetings that will be held on this continent. The "racing set" has grown to such proportions that it might hold the balance of political power in this country were it organized properly. An army of 500,000 men and boys find employment in various ways on the tracks, in the stables and in the pool-rooms and betting rings, and 25,000 persons often witness a great confest. Women are as enthasiastic as men in their devotion to racing, and they know the good points of a racer and also how to back their favorites as well as father, husband or brother.

It is too early yet, of course, to speak with even the shadow of certainty about some of the great coming events, but tracks are being put in readiness for the opening of the season, and famous horses are being nursed and fed and petted as carefully and lovingly as a mother guards a favorite child.

Talking to the compilers of "Goodwin's Official Turf Guide," the standard authority on racing matters in this country, to-day, I learned some interesting facts. Last year, there were five clubs, four Eastern and one western, that gave in added money alone $1,004,330 between them. The Monmouth Park Racing Association gave $246,500. As this Club has twenty-six racing days, the average ures. Last year was a phenomenally suc-cessful one. Millions of dollars were lost and western, that gave in added money alone

11.004.380 between them. The Monmouth Park

Racing Association gave $246,500. As this Club has twenty-six racing days, the average of added money was $9,480 per day. The Coney Island Jockey Club gave $229,900. It had twenty-seven racing days, and the average of added money was $8,514 per day. The New York Jockey Club gave in all $222,005.
The number of racing days being twentyseven, the average of this Club was $8,244 per day. The Brooklyn Jockey Club gave $197, 126, an average of $7,581 per day in a season of twenty-six racing days. The Washington Park Club of Chicago gave in all $408,200; as the number of its racing days was twenty-five this shows an average of added money of $4,328 per day. What the amount of added money will be this year no one can foretell.
In the nature of things it is impossible. But that there will be a large increase is certain.
The approximate value of the stakes to be run for are greater, and this will insure an increased amount of added money. These things, taken into consideration with the fact that more and better horses are to run in all the ble races this year.

that more and better horses are to run in all the big races this year, promise a season of unusual brilliance and interest.

THE PRATHER STABLE AND PARM.
With the exception of J. B. Haggin, the California millionaire, the late J. B. Prather, California millionaire, the late J. B. Prather, of Maryville, Mo., was the most extensive breeder of thoroughbreds in the United States. He had over ninety broodmares on his place, but unless his will is broken his entire establishment and racing stable will have to be sold. Mr. Prather left almost his entire stable to one of his two sons, and Mr. Prather's farm of 400 acres just outside the city limits of Maryville as well as the horses and other property are to be sold for the benefit of this son. Although the widow is comfortably provided for during the remainder of her days by the rental from the widow is comfortably provided for during the remainder of her days by the rental from the bank, drug store and other buildings, there is some talk of her contesting the will, and if she succeeds in breaking it the stock farm and stable may be saved. Galen, who ran third in the Futurity in 1888, was bred by Mr. Prather, being by his stallion Faustus, out of Lady Restless. A number of other good ones were bred on this farm which besides Faustus, has two other very valuable stallions.

HORSE CHAT.

Jos. D. Lucas has another foal at his Goodwood stock farm near Florissant. The colt, which was dropped on the 19th inst., is by J. H. Fenton, out of Lady Taylor.

J. D. Patton, the well-known St. Louis turfman, is just recovering from a long spell of sickness.

The Effingham stable, Sid Groves trainer, arrived here to-day from New Orleans with four horses, including Lemoine H. Three more will be brought from their farm at Effingham, Ill., and placed at the St. Louis track.

The first fast move of the season was made at the St. Louis track yesterday by Cinch, owned by C. M. Barry, who was sent in the heavy track for a quarter of a mile in company with J. M. Ghio's 2-year-old Italia. Cinch made the first furlong in a shade over it seconds and the half in 25 seconds even. The youngster also showed good speed consid ering it was his first trial.

The St. Louis Browns' players are arriving daily, and by the end of the week all the team will have reported. Shorty Fuller, the Browns' sprightly short-stop, arrived yesterday from Cincinnati. Since last winter he has cultivated a mustache, and he will have to be reintroduced to his friends, so changed is his facial expression. Shorty is looking the picture of health. He has been putting in his spare moments the past winter in the Cincinnati Gymnasium and is in good playing trim. William F. Clingman, the Browns' new infielder, arrived this morning from Cincinnati. He played on the Cincinnati Reds last season a part of the time, and showed himself capable of covering either second or short creditably. He is a very fair base-runner, quick in action, and can cover a good deal of ground.

Tip O'Neill is once more with his friends in St. Louis, and Tip is glad to be here. He is one of the hardest hitters in the profession, and he will no doubt show up in good shape this year. Pitcher Charley King has not yet this year. Pitcher Charley king has not yet reported for practice or to be measured for a uniform, and it is generally believed that he has jumped his contract and signed with the National League and is holding back from de-claring himself until the case of Mark Baldwin, charged with conspiracy to get him to break his contract with St. Louis, has been disposed of. He is a witness in behalf of Bald-

BASE BALL BRIEFS. The Cincinnati American Association Club is all right, and it will be found right up with the leaders this season. Under Mike Kelly's guidance it will prove a strong factor in the championship race. The outfield will be pretty speedy with George Andrews, Dick Johnson and Emmet Seery.

Testerday one of the star out-fielders of America, Hugh Duffy of the Boston Association Club, arrived here from Hot Springs, where he has been for a month past. Duffy called on his old friend Capt. Comiskey, and put in the day at Sportsman's Park. He is enthusiastic over the prospects of the American Association season and reports the chances of the Boston Club for winning the pennant very bright. Duffy is an anti-Spalding man, and says he knows of a couple of good men, now on the Chicago Club, who regret their hastiness in not waiting and joining the Association. Duffy is looking remarkably well.

The Browns and J. L. Hudsons are to cross bats at Sportsman's Park this afternoon.

PUGILISTIC POINTERS.

PUGILISTIC POINTERS.

Joe McAuliffe has declared off his fight with Pat Farrell of Pittsburg, whom he was to knock out in ten rounds. McAuliffe gave as a reason that he broke his hand in the set to with Jim Daly. The latter will fight Farrell. Ted Pritchard and Jem Smith yesterday deposited £100 each to fight for the championship of England and £500 a side.

It is now decided that Dixon and McCarthy will fight at Troy, Judge Griffith having issued an injunction to prevent the police from interfering, and the Police Commissioners having instructed the Superintendent to see that the court's order was obeyed.

Frank Moran of Hot Springs, Ark., yesterday telegraphed Daly Bros. of this city to send him a set of four-ounce boxing gloves at once.

SPORTING NOTES. John L. Brewer of Philadelphia won the second of his series of three matches with J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas City at Marion, N. J., yesterday. The men shot at 100 birds each, and Brewer killed 96 to Elliott's 92, winning $1,000 and the title of champion wing shot. The third match of the series will be shot tomorrow. It is also for $1,000 a side, but as Brewer has already won two matches, he wins the contest even if Elliott is victorious to-morrow.

Covered With Scales. Awful Specta-cle. Cured in Five Weeks by the Cuticura Remedies.

About the 1st of April last I noticed some red pim ples like coming out all over my body, but though nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to look like spots of mortal spotted on, and which came off in layers accompanied with itching. I would scratch with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw; then the next night, the scales being formed meanwhile, were scratched off again. In vain did I consult all the doc-tors in the county, but with-out aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery I happened to see an advertisement in the

RARE ART TREASURE.

An Old Painting in Posession of a Citizen of Dubuque. DUBUQUE, Io., March 25.-There is now in the posession of John Derry of this city a rare art treasure. It is an oil painting 5x8 found among the debris in the ruined palace of the Bishops at an ancient Spanish Mission near Sante Fe. Mr. Derry refuses to state how the painting came into his possession. The scene is evidently one of the twelve stations of the cross. In the center is the figure of the Savior, bearing the cross. Around are massed a crowd of figures—Roman soldiers, weeping women and apostles. are massed a crowd of figures—Roman soldiers, weeping women and apostles. Prominent in the left cluster stands St. Veronica, who is holding the napkin in which is faint impression of the Saviour's face. The conception of the scene is sublime, and the grouping is said by critics to be entirely original. The coloring is deep and rich and scarcely faded by time. The painting is undoubtedly hundreds of years old, and is believed to be by one of the old Italian masters. Mr. Derry says that the painting will soon be sent to New York.

THE LETTERS ARE GONE.

A PECULIAR FACT DEVELOPED IN THE RUTTINGER-WRIGHT MYSTERY.

Messages From England Received Over a Week After Willie Wright's Disappear ance Have Been Delivered to Some

NEW YORK, March 25 .- Now a w ears, who wants to identify the body tof E. C. Smith, who was a clerk in Macey's and disappeared some time ago. The actress, Mrs. Neil, it has been rather conclusively shown, identified the body as George H Edgar for advertising purposes only. Her assistant in that identification has identified two other bodies as having once been subjec to the intellect of George H. Edgar. The new identifier, who is an actress also, was sick yesterday and could not testify at the Coroner's inquest. What her motive is no one can tell. The suspicion is she also wants advertising. The question whether or not Fred Evans and William Wright were the same man will be determined on the arrival from England of a member of Wright's family, who is supposed to be on the way.

Wright's family, who is supposed to be on the way.

WRIGHT'S MOVEMENTS.

WRIGHT HIS BOATDING-house in Fifty-first street to go to Boston on the night of Feb. 1. His brother-in-law and chum, Carl E. Ruttinger, left the boarding-house the next morning and that night went to Tottenville, Staten Island. Fred Evans registered at the Astor House early in the morning of Feb. 3 and cut his throat shortly after being assigned to a room. His body was buried in the City Cemetery. On March 8 the body of Carl E. Ruttinger was found in Arthur Kill at Tottenville. Since the date of the disappearance of Ruttinger and Wright two letters had been sent to this country addressed to the latter at the General Fost-office. The dirst of these was written by Wright's mother, and mailed at Cardiff. It should have reached New York about Feb. 11. A letter from Wright's brother, Richard, should have reached the New York Post-office about a week later.

All letters which remain in the Post-office for thirty days are published as unclaimed at the end of that period. The list is made out twice a week and posted up for the public's benefit on the Post-office walls. The letter from Wright's mother, if unclaimed, should have been published March 10 or 13, and the one from the brother on March 17 or 20. Some one must have called for those letters and taken them away. Perhaps it was Wright himself, and if it were not, it must have been some person who represented himself as Wright. The name "William Wright" does not appear in any of the lists from March 6 to March 20 the lists. wright. The name "William Wright" does not appear in any of the lists from March 6 to March 20 inclusive. The name "William H. Wright" is published in the list of March 13, but this letter could not have been either of those in question, as it was addressed to a street and number, while Wright's letters were addressed to the General-Post-Office.

The published list of March 17 under the head of "German Letters," contains "No. 490, C. E. Ruttinger," This would indicate Ruttinger had disappeared before Feb. 17, and in fact no one has been found who saw him between the time he left his boarding-house in Fifty-first street Feb. 2 up to the time his body was found in Arthur Kill March 8.

District Attorney Fitzgerald of Staten Island finds himself much hampered in his investigation by lack of funds. It was several days before he could cable to the other side for information, because he had to wait for the Board of Supervisors to meet and make an appropriation. It now turns out that he is again waiting for funds to have the stomach of Ruttinger analyzed. This is considered one of the vital points in the case, as it will determine whether or not Ruttinger was drugged or poisoned.

MRS. U. S. GRANT'S 355,000.

Hoodwinked by a Sharper.

New York, March 25.—A strange misunderstanding has arisen between the widow of relation to the investment of a large sum of money. The amount in question is $55,000 and according to statements which Mrs. Grant has just made, Mr. Andrews was intrusted with this sum for investment by Mrs. Grant, but he did not invest it in exactly the way that Mrs. Grant intended he should or was led to understand he would at the time. The statement of Mrs. Grant's side of the case as referred to above, is contained in a long letter which was received by John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Coll king. the Standard Oil king, on Monday last. It was written by Mrs. Grant, and it stated, in substance, about as follows:
Some three years ago, Mrs. Grant, knowing that Mr. Andrews was a stockholder in the Standard Oil Trust, had asked him to invest.

Standard Oil Trust, had asked him to invest $55,000 for her in the stock of that corporation. Mr. Andrews informed her, she writes, that he was about selling out his Standard Oil stocks and was going into a much bigger thing, and he advised Mrs. Grant that there would be a great opportunity for the investment of her $55,000 at better advantage than in the Standard Oil stock, if she would come in on the ground floor of the new enterprise. The scheme which Mr. Andrews referred to was the New York Steam Oo., the concern which keeps New York supplied with volcanos was the New York Steam Co., the concern which keeps New York supplied with voicanos in the streets and spurts its mingled sewer gas and steam into the nostrils of down-town pedestrians. Mr. Andrews and others were organizing this company at that time and Mrs. Grant says she got the impression from Mr. Andrews' conversation that the Standard oll magnates were behind the steam company as its financial backers, and that their all-powerful influence was going to make it a perfect bonanza. On this understanding—that the steam company was virtually a Standard Oil enterprise—Mrs. Grant says she gave Mr. Andrews her check for $35,600 and he transferred to her a block of stock in the New York Steam Co. Mrs. Grant's object in writing Mr. Rockefeller, who is president of the great Standard Oil Trust, was to ask him, she said, to please be so good as to have her stock in the Steam company exchanged for stock in the Standard Oil Trust. Mrs. Grant naively explained, with a women's description of the president of the great Standard Oil Trust. Mrs. Grant naively explained, with a women's description of the president of the grant standard oil trust. Mrs. Grant naively explained, company exchanged for stock in the Standard' Oil Trust. Mrs. Grant naively explained, with a woman's jees of business, that she was tired of waiting for dividends on steam stock which never came, and she wanted her shares exchanged for those of the oil trust, which pay big dividends with great regularity,

Mr. Rockefeller was greatly surprised at this letter from Mrs. Grant. He made haste to answer it, assuring her that he was powerless to grant her request as to the exchange of stock. He explained at length that neither the Standard Oil Trust nor any of its trustees were the backers or promoters of the steem were the backers or promoters of the steam company, either directly or indirectly, and that they never had anything to do with the affairs of Mr. Andrews' company. Any im-pression that the steam company's certifi-cates could be exchanged for Standard Oil Trust shares was entirely unwarranted. As to Mr. Andrews himself, he has not been connected with the Standard Co. for several

Happier With the Other Man.

Danburt, Conn., March 25.—The young society people of this city were surprised yesterday when they learned that Miss Jennie Baldwin had been secretly married to Frederick Wildman. For some time past Miss Baldwin has been engaged to be married to George Moore, a well-known and popular young man of this city. The preparations for the wedding were well under way, as it was to take place on Thursday. The prospective bride had selected her trousseau and all arrangements had been made, even to obtaining the license. The parents! of both the young people looked with favor on the union. Last Sunday afternoon Frederick Wildman, a former sultor of Miss Baldwin, drove up to the Baldwin homesteed and, after making a short call, drove away with Miss Jennie. She told her parents that she would go for a short drive with him and would return home early. Wildman drove with Miss Baldwin to New York State, just across the Connecticut State line, where he procured a marriage license and the young couple were married. They then returned to the home of her parents and told them of what they had done and asked forgiveness. This was granted after a good deal of persussion. Mrs. Wildman's action was a great surprise to her friends and the friends of the young man. She said she thought that she would be with Moore. All persons concerned young man. She said she thought that at would be happier with Wildman than at would be with Moore. All persons concerns are very high in society. The sympathy the young people is with Moore, who is nearly distracted over his loss.

THE EX-MAYOR FLED.

A Sensational Street Encounter in Ra cine, Wis. CHICAGO, Ill., March 25.—A special dispatch from Racine says: Jackson I. Case, son of J. Case and candidate for Mayor, had a sensa tional encounter with ex-Mayor Secor or Main street last night. Case asserted that he

Main street last night. Case asserted that he had traced the authorship of certain scandalous stories affecting his character to Secor. Meeting him on Main street he stepped in front of Secor and charged him with having started the stories. This the ex-Mayor denied. The charge was repeated and again denied angrity. By this time a large crowd had gathered, which did not serve to cool the temper of the two men. Finally the wordy war was brought to an abrupt conclusion by Case striking Secor a heavy blow in the chest, staggering him back into the crowd. As soon as Secor could gather himself up he started on a run down the street with Case in hot pursuit. The latter, being younger and more active, soon caught the ex-Mayor and added one or two more blows to that already given. Secor, however, managed to shake off his antagon, ist and escape. A warrant will be probably sworn out.
